

The Girl

👁 42 ✓ 6 ★ 8

Chapter 1 by LEVI LANGHAM

I go to a pretty good school and there is this girl she's like the most beautiful girl in school to me , I don't know what her name is but I will figure it out sooner or latter. The next day I went to school i figured out that her name is , I don't know because nobody told me.

Chapter 2 by SaintSayaka

Little does she know that she is the entire reason for my being.

As her guardian angel, I have traveled through time and heaven itself to be by her side. And yet, I do not know her name. I suppose that it isn't really important. Here on Earth, I can receive a decent education all while protecting her from harm's way. It's a decent deal.

Still, I wish I could know her a little better. Human interaction has never been one of my strong points.

Chapter 3 by SaintSayaka

Take today, for example, when I almost killed my own protectee. Not literally, of course, at least I hope, it all happened over a little game that these humans call dodgeball. How was I supposed to know that the "cool" thing to do was to not let my eyes roll back? Aren't sports all about effort? A few students shook their heads at my eyes rolling back and I ended my old out on a gurney. The nurse insisted that I leave my resume.

"A dedicated boyfriend, huh? Many girls wish they were so lucky." I smiled awkwardly. Clearly, she had no idea that I just beamed this girl in the head with a rubber ball in the name of sport. Humans do strange things for fun.

Much as she encouraged young love, the nurse had had her fill of me by the time we reached her office. I was shooed away as my victim was loaded into a soft bed and her parents were called. I had planned to hover around the doorway in wait until their arrival, but a hall monitor had caught me and sent me packing back to my room with a warning. If only this were heaven, where I could lawfully make my case.

Still, it was a hell of a way to introduce myself to Amanda Bridge.
